

Grant a New Lease on LIFE

“Families exiting homelessness pose no greater risk than any other family applying for a lease. I’ve enjoyed my relationship with the District, and I enjoy giving families in need a fresh start.”

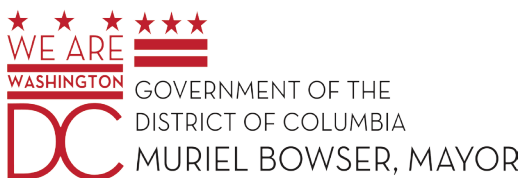

THOMAS BATEMAN, RAPID RE-HOUSING LANDLORD

The District of Columbia Department of Human Services is seeking affordable apartment units for families currently experiencing homelessness.

The District is committed to quickly returning persons experiencing homelessness to their communities.

If you are a landlord with available, affordable, apartment units in the District, why not consider granting A New Lease on Life...

Participating landlords receive a subsidy directly from the government for a portion of the rent for the full one-year lease period. Families pay the remaining portion of the rent and sign and agree to the one-year lease.
