Use your SNAP benefits to buy groceries to cook at home for you and your family.

The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) provides nutrition assistance for individuals and families via an Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) card. To be eligible for SNAP benefits, you must meet income criteria. You can use your EBT card to buy eligible food items. Check out the QR code or website for a list of eligible items:

Protect your SNAP benefits from fraud.

Avoid trading or selling your benefits.

TIP: Pick a PIN number for your EBT card that you will remember. Don’t share your PIN or put it any place visible on your card. Having a PIN number that only you know protects your benefits from misuse if you lose your card.

Using SNAP benefits for anything other than food is not allowed. If your benefits are used for anything other than to purchase food, you risk losing your benefits. Do you need help protecting your benefits or reporting misuse? Contact your caseworker or a DHS Economic Security Administration (ESA) Service Center.
